Abstract

Follow APA guidelines to construct and present the abstract. Use New Times Roman font, size 12. Align to left margin. Do not indent first line. Double spaced for editing purposes. Please enter two spaces between successive sentences. Type the abstract as a single paragraph without paragraph indentation. The recommended word limit for the abstract is 250 words.

Keywords: indent single tab from margin, type in keywords using lower case lettering and separate words with semicolons.

Title of Your Paper (NTR Size 16 font)

This brief example illustrates the general format for a one experiment research article in APA style. Complete details on paper preparation are to be found in the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association, 6th edition (2010) [APA Publication Manual]. For other paper formats (meta-analyses, case studies, literature reviews and other possible types of publications commonly found in the field of Education), please consult the APA Publication Manual for information on formatting.

The title is presented centered on the first available line of type below the underscore separating the abstract and key words from the text. Begin the text of the article by indenting one tab (.5") from the left hand margin. Type your paper using New Times Roman font, size 12. Please enter two spaces after a period that ends a sentence. Use true double spaced line separation when typing. Do not add a space between paragraphs of the same style (for Microsoft Word go to Page Layout, Spacing and check the box that says "Don't add space between paragraphs of the same style."). Use a left page alignment. Do not center or justify the text. The left- and right-page margins are 1". The header on the page should be positioned .5" from the top, and any information contained in the footer should be .5" from the bottom of the page.

Materials and Procedure

Enter your description of materials and procedures here. If necessary, use a separate section for Procedures (as indicated below). Subheadings may be used if necessary to separate out special sections in either the methods or procedures sections.

Subheading. Use subheadings if necessary. For additional information on the use of headings, please see the APA Publication Manual.

Procedure

Enter a description of your procedure here. Write in a clear and succinct style.

Results

Describe your results fully. Use APA recommended guidelines for delineating statistical results (see APA Publication Manual). If tables or figures are to be entered in your paper, indicate where they are to be entered using the following format (also see a table insertion below):

Enter Fig. 1 about here

Tables and figures must conform to the formatting standards defined in the APA Publication Manual. Use only black typeface for tables and figures. Large tables or figures should be constructed to fit on one page. Use a font size that permits the table to fit on a single page. Tables may be resized during editing. For tables and figures less than a whole page in size, text wrapping will be used to avoid large blank areas on the pages of the article.

Discussion

Follow the results section with the discussion section. Enter the centered header ‘Discussion’ in boldface type. Double space down and begin the discussion section. Follow the discussion section with the ‘References’ section. The ‘References’ section begins one double space down from the end of the discussion section. The word “References” is centered and in boldface type. All references should be double spaced, use hanging indent format (.5” indent) and follow the guidelines for referencing found in the APA Publication Manual. Include doi and complete source information for each reference if available (see the APA Publication Manual for specifics on references from electronic databases, the internet and other sources). Representative reference formats for articles, books and periodicals are provided below in the desired APA format. In the notations, ‘vv’ stands for the volume number in italics; ‘ii’ for the issue number in parentheses and in normal (not italic) type, and ‘pp-pp’ stands for the page numbers (i.e., 27-42). Additional reference formats are found in Chapters 6 and 7 in the APA Publication Manual
