Brief Description

Narrative
The Coahoma County Higher Education Center (CCHEC) was designed to enhance the outreach capabilities of Delta State University (DSU) and Coahoma Community College (CCC). The partnership between the two institutions allows them to expand their educational outreach to the people of Coahoma County, and the surrounding counties, by offering junior and senior level coursework as well as continuing education classes. The central location of the CCHEC gives the people of Coahoma County a real advantage by giving them an opportunity to increase their education with a minimum of travel. Both institutions plan to offer programmatic coursework at the CCHEC that will target high needs within the region. These may include, but are not limited to professional development opportunities in the following areas: education and teacher preparation, healthcare, and business development. Continuing education programs (non-degree coursework) may include, but are not limited to the culinary arts, performing arts, hospitality and tourism, the music industry, and mental and physical enrichment opportunities. Cultural events are also scheduled throughout the year at the CCHEC as another avenue to expand educational opportunities within the region and to encourage life-long learning for all of its citizens.

Judgment

Narrative
The CCHEC's partnership with the Carnegie Public Library developed a proposal to create an annual "Community Book Talks" literary series which invites authors from all over the country to come to Clarksdale to speak about their published works and the importance of literacy. Part of the proposal was to use the grant money awarded to utilize different caterers and restaurants for the events, put the authors up in downtown lofts and inns, take them out to dinner in downtown Clarksdale for lunch and/or dinner, and show them the Delta. This was one small way of promoting our downtown businesses and supporting them economically. The other primary purpose of partnership was to increase traffic on the CCHEC campus and show people how beautiful an historic this tiny campus really is.
