Your financial aid has been placed on Suspension Status based on your academic performance. At this time you are not eligible to receive federal financial aid funds. This includes loans, grants, and federal work study. You have the right to appeal this decision. If you choose to appeal, complete and return the appeal form on the back of this letter.

There are two ways to have your Financial Aid reinstated.

- 1) Pay for and successfully complete enough undergraduate or graduate hours to increase your Delta State University GPA to the required minimum of 2.00 for undergraduates or 3.00 for graduate students.

OR

- 2) File an appeal for reinstatement (on the back of this letter) that is approved based on your specific mitigating (i.e. injury, illness, death of a relative, or other unforeseen situations) circumstances and documentation.

If you decide to appeal your suspension status, make sure you attach the appropriate documentation to support your appeal. Appeals without documentation will be returned. Once submitted, please allow at least thirty (30) working days after the submission to the Financial Aid office for review. Students will receive notification of the decision. If the appeal is not properly completed and documented, the appeal decision will be delayed.
